What we did:

Gladstone Primary Academy and Ellison Primary Academy shared their good news! Thankyou to Jacob and Ben for sharing such lovely news with us.

We then reminded ourselves of the last session where we talked about ‘inspirational’ learning and who or what inspired us to be fantastic learners.

We split in to two groups, with representatives from each academy in both groups. We thought about what an inspirational Societas academy would look like. We mindmapped all our ideas and then shared our ideas with the other group. After this, we all voted individually on our top three high quality learning images. Look at our fabulous thinking below!

The key ‘ingredients’ of an inspirational Societas academy...

Values: Respect, gratitude, independence, bravery to try new things, being caring, kindness, perseverance

Learning:

- lots of different subjects and opportunities to learn so that children can ‘shine in their own way’.
- talking about new and different ideas that we haven’t learned about before
- learning in different spaces around academies and in different groups e.g. sometimes being quiet and calm, sometimes working with others, sometimes working independently. Being in places that are light and have greenery.
- learning in different places outside classrooms e.g. the countryside, by the beach, in a secret garden, in a space station!
- learning with lots of different people e.g. family, teachers, experts from different professions: doctors, police.

Our chosen high quality learning skills that we would see in all academies:

- Confidence
- Curiosity
- Challenges
- Learning new skills

Great ideas:

- Food available to start our brains in the morning, ready for our learning.
- Being confident by making speeches for the world to hear.
- Different clubs because we are like a family that can learn in different ways.
- Learning can be anywhere!
